LAND SURVIVAL: Are you prepared?

Presented by: Bruce Allred / Safety Program Manager, ICT FSDO

At anytime during one's flying career, one must be prepared to be put at the mercy of Mother Nature. In a forced landing situation or in an aircraft accident, most often victims do not get to select their survival environment, terrain or climate.

However remote the possibilities of an off airport landing, it becomes the pilots responsibility to prepare themselves with the skills and training necessary to prepare their passengers for a possible survival situation. A positive attitude is essential for remaining alive. Those who give up often do not survive.

This exciting program will teach you how to be prepared if the survival situation should it ever become necessary and help you develop the skills necessary for survival.
